

Labor Relations Boot Camp

Schwartz Hannum PC has developed a one-day program for human resource professionals, labor relations professionals, in-house counsel, and managers at both unionized and non-unionized employers, who want to better understand and manage the big-picture and day-to-day operations of their business' labor-management relationships.

Presented in an interactive seminar format by lively and knowledgeable attorney instructors, this program will cover the following topics.

Topics will include:

- Labor Board Update – Cases And Developments
- Employee Handbook And Work Rule Update
- Decertification: What Is It And When Is It Possible?
- Investigating Employee Misconduct
- Labor Implications Of Paid Family Leave, Pay Equity Requirements, #MeToo, And Other Hot Topics In Employment Law
- The Outer Limits Of Protected Concerted Activity

Who should attend?

- Experienced labor relations professionals preparing for upcoming negotiations – or an active docket of arbitrations – will learn practical tips, strategies and skills to enable them to more effectively manage labor relations.
- Human resource professionals -- in union and non-union settings – will learn how to maintain an NLRA-compliant workplace, and those who anticipate potential unionization efforts will gain greater insight into the many ways in which labor unions could dramatically change employer-employee relations.
